A MUSICAL TREAT Innugural Concert of the National

Conservatory of Music. The inaugural concert given under the aus-pices of the National Conservatory of Music last evening at the Universalist Church, was a decided success. The guditorium and galleries of the church were crowded with people well known in Washington society.

The interior of the church was productly and artistically descrated with the national colors and pulms. A pleasing feature in connection with the decorations was that suffering Cuba was not forgotten, for alongside of the Stars and Stripes floated the flag of the Cuban in impartial in bestowing its favors, and received of the concert with the hearty applause which they justly merited. The program comisted of the following num-

The Eighteenth, which arrived last night, got to the camp so late it was unable to throw up tents and camped in the betting ring of the race truck, where the ground is paved.

The work of erecting a hospital was begun today and almost completed. Col. Clarke, associate surgeon general, reached here from Atlanta to take charge. The hospital will have as attending physician all the medical force in the various regiments and volunteers from civillan ranks will be accepted, should the necessity arise. Col. Ovenshine expects some sickness among the men, due to the sudden change of cli-mate, indeed, several of the men com-plain of being sick from drinking the amp water, which had, to them, an infamiliar taste.

The hospital consists of several large tents and a number of smaller ones to be used as wards, the largest ones for treatment stations, built some distance apart from the regular camps. it will be built sufficiently large to accommo-date 1,000 men. The Fair Grounds have been provided with electric lights and the situation there is greatly improved. The First Regiment, at Presidio Barracks, San Francisco, will not leave there until Saturday. The Eightsenth Regiment enjoys the distinction of hav-ing three captains who fought in the Confederate army during the civil war. Two members of the Twenty-third, up-on their arrival here, were honorably discharged from the service, their term of enlistment having expired.
